To the Editor of the Dimatch:

In my dispatch of last Saturday evening I stated that some twenty of the twenty-eight delegates from Washington county would be for Colonel O'Ferrall. This statement was made the evening of the election from information I had received and also from what I supposed was the sentiment of the people of the county. I am a Tyler man and would not do him an injustice, but aimed to give you facts as they were. The delegation from this sounty stands 14 for O'Ferrall, 10 for Tyler, and 4 for Buford. S. M. Withers.

(By telegraph to the Dispatch.)

Sr. Paul, Minn., August 4.—The temporary suspension of the German-American National Bank last night, although not unexpected in banking circles, was a great surprise to the general community. Still, so confident are the people of the strength of the remaining banks, that, although some depositors are quietly withdrawing money from a few banks, there is no particular excitement or general run on any of the banks. The savings banks for several days have been enforcing the sixty-day rule, although most of them have abundant resources for any emergency.

Senator Ransom is here to-day. When asked his views on the Sterman silver bill he stated to your correspondent that he did not consider it prudent or wise for members of Congress to express themselves on the subject before the assembling of Congress. He said he recognized the fact that Congress must take some action in regard to the financial condition of the country. Senator Ransom will do what appears to him best for the good of the State he loves so dearly.

An interesting game of ball was played here yesterday by the Garysburg and Weldon nines, which resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 14 to 4. The Weldon club played under disadvantages. Pitcher Hayward was sick, and two of the nine were absent. He succeeded in striking eight men out, however, and pitched a good game. Batteries: Hill and Grizzard; Hayward and Spillman. Virginian in Highest Praise.

The Daily Star, published at Phoenix, Ariz., in an editorial highly sulogistic of Lieutenant Powhatan H. Clark, whose drowning recently in Little Big Horn river was reported in the Disparch, says:

"Readers of the Star will recollect the many deeds of heroism which distinguished the military career of the young officer. Five years ago, in an encounter with the followers of Geronimo, when the Tenth Cavairy, the regiment in which he was an officer, was compelled to retire from the attempt to dislodge the Indians from an impregnable natural fort, one of them was severely wounded. Without thought of exposing himself Lieutenant Clark went to the front, and amid bullets falling as thick as snowflakes in November he carried the disabled soldier from the nield. * * As a recognition of his qualities as a soldier he was sent to the military school of Germany to become acquainted with the tactices of foreign armies and returned but a short time since to join his old regiment. An additional touch of pathos is given to the death by the fact that he leaves a widow, to whom he had been married but little more than a year. To her and to the family of the deceased the people of Arizona will extend their hearty sympathy."

Lieutenant Clarke was a native of Virginia and a nephew of Captain Maxwell T. Clarke, of this city. A prominent gentleman in Arizona pars the following tribute to the young officer in a private letter to the Disparch: "The many iriends—and their names are legionfin Arizona—of the brilliant young officer greatly mourn his untimely end. He was a great favorite among the civilians of the Territory and much beloved in the army. His career in the Indian war in Arizona was the most brilliant of any of the young officers who distinguished themselves, and the Virginians who had made their homes on the frontier took much pride in his dashing qualities and predicted for him great distinction. If he had only lived he would have been the peer of Fitzhugh L

San Francisco, August 4.—Mail advices from San Jose de Costa Rica, Central America, report a disastrous state of affairs there. Throughout the republic there is a financial panic caused by the condition of the silver market. Failures have been numerous and more are expected. Among the houses which have gone to the wall are the following: Juan L de Dough. Munoz & Villaion. Jose Munoz. Jesus Pinto, Cubero & Co., Echaudy & Co., Francisco N. Zolera, Fernando Gvicoches & Co., J. Farner Ebantala & Co. These firms are all prominent and their liabilities are very large. All business is very much depressed, and no change is looked for until some action is taken that will render the monetary system more stable. A most significant occurrence in financial circles is the embarrassment of the Costa Rica Bank, formerly and better known as the Banco de la Union. Its notes are no longer accepted in commercial circles. The fact of its being in difficulty has been disseminated throughout the country by General Ventura Carazo, and it is feared that the promuigation of its trouble will have a bad effect on other financial institutions, Yellow-fever is reported to be raging at Port Limon, on the Atlantic side, and with such fatal effect that half the population have fallen victums to the dread disease. It is also stated at the Treasury Department that there is no likelihood of the resumption of the issue of gold certificates until the free gold stands from seven to teu millions above the reserve. Washinoton, D. C., August 4.—Private advices—later and apparently more authentic than those received by the State Department—as to the movements of the Bering-Sea arbitrators have reached this city. Senator Morgan cables his son that it will be impossible for him to leave Paris before August 19th. This is a postponement of two weeks beyond the time crisinally set for his departure. Several days ago the Senator booked himself for passage on a steamer sailing August 5th, and this was taken as a sign that the verdict of the arbitrators would be rendered this week. From the language of his cablegram, however, it seems that he is doubtful whether the arbitrators will have finished their duties even upon the 19th.

wrecked a little banking enterprise, but he landed here when times were good and confidence was not hard to gain, and started a banking business. He went to New York ostensibly to sell $100,000 worth of Colbert county bonds, and during his absence the suspension of his bank was announced, and it was realized that a number of people here of modest means had suffered to an extent aggregating $35,000, with no show for a cent. NEW YORK, August 4.—Dr. Talmadge, of the Quarantine Board of Health, boarded the steamship Karamania this morning and inspected the passengers. All on board were well.

The Karamania arrived at quarantine yesterday after a long voyage from the cholera-infected port of Naples. During the voyage three passengers died and were buried at sea, and as the ship's surgeon did not specify the disease from which the passengers died, the vessel was held for fumigation and disinfection. A suspicion prevailed that the disease was Asiatic cholera, but nothing definite could be learned last night.

After inspecting the passengers this morning the health officer ordered transfer-boats to take them to islands in the bay, where they will be detained until all doubts as to the existence of cholera is removed. Dr. Jenkins says that while he can find no evidence that there has been cholera on board he deems the circumstances sufficiently suspicious to hold the vessel.

In appearance the Karamania is not a very attractive vessel. She has the outward aspect of a tramp steamer, and is, in fact, a Mediterranean fruiter during the season. She is built of iron, is of 3.148 tons gross measurement, and is rigged as a schooner. She was built in 1822 and is little better than a floating oven, with lack of both light and ventilation. In this vessel nearly five hundred souls spent twenty-one days of warm weather, cramped for room and breathing foul air.

The first death on the steamer was reported by Consul Sprague, at Gibraltar, as from "congestion of lungs," and was probably diagnosed thus by the ship's surgeon.

The name of the steamer's doctor is has been in the East India service.

Dr. Jenkins dictated the following to a representative of the United Press this afternoon:

"We have not had an opportunity to see the cases, as they died and were buried at sea, but many of the symptoms of the last two cases resemble those of cholera, and if they did not we would certainly not be loud the ship. There is no need of alarm. The ship and passengers will be detained in this we have absolute proof that there is no danger in landing her passengers. Arrangements are now being made to transfer her passengers to the Islands.

[Signed] "Bu, Jenkins."

Dr. Jenkins ordered the hospital-ship S. B. Carlton to the lower bay in order to have her convenient for an emergency.

Father Hubert had in him the element that goes to make the hero—perfect fearlessness in the discharge of duty. The crow of the renowned Merrimae were under his chaplannship. When she had her famous fight with the Monitor Father Hubert was on shore. Immediately after the fight Father Hubert sent word to the commanding officer, Admiral Buchanan, that he wished to come aboard and attend to those who needed his services. Admiral Bachanan came ashore and said: "Father, I do not wish you to come aboard. We expect to engage the Monitor again tomorrow, and it will be no place for you," "My place is with the wounded and dying," answered the brave priest. "But, Father, listen," returned the Admiral, "We are in a very disabled condition, and if the Monitor returns to morrow I shall blow up the Merrimac with all on board, for we are in no condition to fight and will never surrender. Remain on shore." "As I said before, my place is with the wounded and dying," replied the father. "If it is necessary I wish to die with the men."

After the war Father Hubert returned to New Orleans and was made pastor of the Jesuit church.

message came directing me to appear before the commission I deemed it prudent to obey. On my way a third measenger was met on his way to my house, who was no less fhan the chief of the Detective Corps, the noted Colonel Baker. He returned, conducted me on board the steamer, and ushered me into the cabin, where the commissioners were in session, and by whom, notwithstanding my contumacy, I was very politicly received. I was then told it had been stated to them I nad removed a tumor from the neck of Booth and they wished to know if I could identify the body, and to go on deek and examine it thoroughly and make my report. The body was on deck, completely concealed by a tarpaulin cover, and Surgeon-General Barnes and his assistants standing near it. By his order the cover was removed and, to my great astonishment, revealed a body in whose lineaments there was to me no resemblance to the man I had known in life! My surprise was so great I at once said to General Barnes: "There is no resemblance in that corpse to Booth, nor can I believe it to be that of him." After looking at it for a few moments I asked: "Is there a sear upon the back of its neck?" He replied: "There is." I then said: "If that is the body of Booth let me describe the sear before it is seen by me": and did so as to its position, its size, and its general appearance so accurately as caused him to say: "You have described it, more like the cicatrix of a burn than that made by a surgical operation." The body being then turned, the back of the neck was examined, and my mark was unmistakably found by me upon it. And it bokes as surgical operation." The body being then turned, the back of the neck was examined, and my mark was unmistakably found by me upon it. And it being afterward, at my request, placed in a sitting position, standing and looking down upon it I was finally enabled to impertectly recognize the features of Booth. Bar over in a human being had a greater change taken place, from the man whom I had seen in the vigor of life and health as in tors nearly every vestige of resemblance to the living man had disappeared. But the mark made by the sessipel during life remained indelible in death, and settled beyond all question at the time and all cavil in the future the identity of the man who had assassinated the President.

It Broke Out July 7th But Was Stopped

(By Angio-American capie to the Dispatch.)

Apta, Samoa, July 19, via San Francisco, August 4.—The long-expected war between king Malietoa and Chief Matafa broke out on July 7th. It was short and sharp and was suppressed by the three treaty powers. Malietoa began the Iwar and he had the best of it. He planned a surprise which, but for the accidental discharge of a gun, would have resulted in the extermination of the Mataafa forces. The English, German, and Augerican consular authorities held a consultation and decided that the war must be stopped and it was accordingly done by German and British men-of-war, there being no American vessel at Samoa. Mataafa was compelled to surrender. He low sixteen killed and seventeen wounded. Malietoa lost four killed and twelve wounded. The foreign warships are protecting the surrendered natives from Malietoa's vengeance.

Navahoe "Not in It."

[By Angle-American cable to the Dispatch.1
LONDON, August 4.—The regatta of the Royal Yacht Squadron, of which the Prince of Wales is commodore, took place to-day. The Calluna, Satantia, Valkyrie, and Navahoe started, and though the Navahoe got the best position, she cut a poor figure. She tacked shoreward with the apparent intention of taking the other yachts' wind, but the attempt failed. The Satantia finished first, the Valkyrie second, the Calluna third, and the Navahoe isst. The prize was 4100.

The Question of Platform.

[Staunton Vindicator.]

If the members of the State Democratic Convention to assemble at Richmond are wise they will have no platform at all. To make one they will have no put in a financial plank—a subject on which the people of the State and all over the country, of all parties, are much divided. A platform will involve the plank, and the plank will involve a row. It is impolitic for another reason—the man or men who pretend to know in August how to settle the money question permanently show by the very pretence a lack of comprehension of the magnitude of the problem. Let it alone and let our congressmen so to Congress this month unembarrassed by State platforms, and with only a desire to hear all plans and select the best. Platforms are not much at best, but this matter of money is too serious a one for us to afford to embarrass, by a lot of political kindling-wood, those on whom the work of giving us more curroney rests.
